Warren Weirding

Tribal Sorcery — Goblin

Target player sacrifices a creature. If a Goblin is sacrificed this way, that player puts two 1/1 black Goblin Rogue creature tokens onto the battlefield, and those tokens gain haste until end of turn.

"And that's when it was discovered that boggarts have just half a brain."
—The Book of Other Folk

Matt Cavotta

™ & © 2013 Wizards of the Coast 104/229

Warren Weirding

Tribal Sorcery — Goblin

Target player sacrifices a creature. If a Goblin is sacrificed this way, that player puts two 1/1 black Goblin Rogue creature tokens onto the battlefield, and those tokens gain haste until end of turn.

"And that's when it was discovered that boggarts have just half a brain."
—The Book of Other Folk

Matt Cavotta

™ & © 2013 Wizards of the Coast 104/229

Warren Weirding

Tribal Sorcery — Goblin

Target player sacrifices a creature. If a Goblin is sacrificed this way, that player puts two 1/1 black Goblin Rogue creature tokens onto the battlefield, and those tokens gain haste until end of turn.

"And that's when it was discovered that boggarts have just half a brain."
—The Book of Other Folk

Matt Cavotta

™ & © 2013 Wizards of the Coast 104/229

Warren Weirding

Tribal Sorcery — Goblin

Target player sacrifices a creature. If a Goblin is sacrificed this way, that player puts two 1/1 black Goblin Rogue creature tokens onto the battlefield, and those tokens gain haste until end of turn.

"And that's when it was discovered that boggarts have just half a brain."
—The Book of Other Folk

Matt Cavotta

™ & © 2013 Wizards of the Coast 104/229